This paradigm shift towards more teacher-made tests and school-based assessment has not only led to an increased workload for teachers but has put forward a critical demand for greater accountability in terms of more valid, reliable, and quality assessments. The students' learning needs are overlooked, and teaching objective diverts towards obtaining marks. What are the teachers' perceptions on the effectiveness of school-based oral English assessment? The review of literature comprises two sections: school-based assessment and designing oral assessment. School-based assessment (SBA) is an assessment process done formatively in schools and, school-based assessment is a process of monitoring and evaluating and implementing plans to address perceived weaknesses and strengths of the school. The purpose of this study is to identify the perception of pre-service teachers towards SBA in terms of the level of understanding, preparedness, and the perceived needs. A valid, reliable, and practical instrument is needed to evaluate the implementation of the school-based assessment SBA system. The aim of this study is to develop and assess the validity and reliability of an instrument to measure the perception of teachers towards the SBA implementation in schools. School-based assessment is a new policy venture in the highly centralized education system of Malaysia. The traditional system of assessment no longer satisfies the educational and social needs of the third millennium in the past few decades. Many countries have made profound reforms in their assessment systems. This paradigm shift towards more teacher-made tests and school-based assessment has not only led to an increased workload for teachers but has put forward a critical demand for greater accountability in terms of more valid, reliable, and quality assessments. Teachers' perception towards psychometrics analysis software. School-based assessment (SBA) was implemented in Malaysia in stages starting with Form One secondary school students in 2012. After a few years of implementation, the SBA has raised many concerns, assessment practice, and the factors which shaped and influenced this practice in each of the schools. In this study, assessment had been both a critical issue for teachers and a focus for school-wide professional development. As teachers worked together collectively and collaboratively to effect and manage curriculum and assessment change, a valid, reliable, and practical instrument is needed to evaluate the Implementation of the school-based assessment SBA system: The aim of this study is to develop and assess the validity and reliability of an instrument to measure the perception of teachers towards the SBA implementation in schools. He stressed that this will help shift the focus to more school-based assessments.
